Book About:

This book is the story of a young nomadic man whose father took the sheep for grazing, and in a fight over the sheep's grazing site, was shot dead by a shepherd. The murderer's family –based on a tradition called “Khonbas” (cease blood) –marries their daughter to the victim's son, so that he would refrain from killing his father's murderer for the sake of marital bond. The law of “Khonbas” is the highlight of the Ronj story. A character called Parviz kills Mansor's father in a fight and then goes to the front. But before his departure, the elders in the meeting arrange a marriage between Parviz's sister and Mansor. However, the hatred in the heart of Mansor drives him to look for Parviz in Majnoon Islands to take revenge and also escape the potential punishment. Because with the killing of Parviz at the front, he could have attributed the killing to the Iraqis. To do this, he laid booby traps several times and used methods so that he could attribute the killing of Parviz to the Iraqis . . .
